Dr. Chester L. Magee Relishes First Victory Over Berkeley Of "Mrs. Stanford's Kindergarten"

BY ELIZABETH LAWRENCE

Dr. and Mrs. Chester L. Magee of Carmel will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary next year. A milestone that is remarkable in more than the usual sense — when you know what happened 49 years ago, the day before their wedding.

Chester Magee and his fiancee, Miss Ednah Ballantyne, a young school teacher, were riding on a Los Angeles street car, surrounded by the festively wrapped wedding presents they were transporting home after a pre-nuptial party. The bride-to-be was chatting gaily with her betrothed about the wedding rehearsal scheduled for that evening. Then, without warning, or so much as a syllable of explanation, the groom-to-be leapt from his seat, raced to the street car door, jumped out of the vehicle and disappeared into the crowds on the sidewalk. Nonplussed, his fiancee stared after him. She continued home with her wedding gifts. There she awaited developments.

Chester didn't show up in time for the wedding rehearsal that evening either. With a commendable optimism it was held without him. And about 10:00 o'clock when the rehearsal had jelled to the point of rigor mortis, Chester strolled in.

Dr. Magee, now a spry 86 years old, still grins when Mrs. Magee recalls the incident. As a doctor, he was in a position to offer one of the best explanations ever brought forth by a tardy husband —or husband-to-be—to placate an irate lady. "As we were riding along in the street car," he recounts, "I saw a patient of mine on the street. He was an alcoholic who had been hospitalized, and his clothes taken from him and locked up. Somehow the fellow had found other clothes, and escaped from the hospital. When I saw him he was sauntering along the street, no doubt headed for the swinging doors of the nearest saloon." Dr. Magee, his eyesight not at all smoked-up by romance, recognized his charge, ran from the street car in pursuit, and eventually collared his patient. A certain amount of persuasion was required, so much in fact that Chester missed his own wedding rehearsal, but fortunately not his wedding. Next day his lady married him, and she has kept him firmly by her side for almost half a century.

Seven years ago, after 40 years of medical practice, Dr. Magee retired to Carmel. In the charming redwood house of contemporary style that he and his wife designed, ". . . to give us a living room large enough to hold a grand piano . . ." Dr. Magee is enjoying the kind of 'retirement' that indicates a change of activities, rather than a cessation of them. Chester Magee is an accomplished musician, an expert at chess, and he designs and handcrafts ceramics. He plays his piano for at least an hour a day, favoring Chopin, Schubert and Beethoven.

Since 1870 have come dramatic and revolutionary advances in medicine, and, of course, a world that is greatly changed. Chester Magee was born in 1870 in Prairie City, Illinois, a hamlet about 200 miles southwest of Chicago. His family is one strong in medical tradition. His father, Dr. Thomas L. Magee, was the youngest surgeon in the Union army during the Civil War. Dr. Magee remembers his father telling of an operation performed in a field hospital midway between the Confederate and Union lines. During the surgery a cannon ball tore through the flimsy field hospital, killing the patient lying prone on the operat-

STANFORD CONFERENCE WEDNESDAY

The Seventh Tri-County Stanford Conference will be held at Monterey Peninsula College on Wednesday, Washington's birthday. J. E. Wallace Sterling, president of Stanford, will speak at the opening session at 10:45, following a welcome address by Calvin C. Flint, president of MPC.

Registration starts at 10:00 o'clock and luncheon will be served at noon. Reservations should be made at once, since luncheon cannot be guaranteed without paid-in-advance reservations. All Stanford Alumni, friends, and students are invited to the day long conference.

Mayor Lyon Is Candidate Files Just Under Deadline 9 Now In Council Contest

This morning Mayor Horace Lyon decided to seek re-election to the city council. He took out his nomination papers at 9:00 o'clock, circulated them for sponsor signatures, and returned them to City Clerk Peter Mawdsley 17 minutes before the noon deadline for filing candidacy papers for the April 10 municipal election.

Lyon brings the number of candidates up to nine for three vacancies on the city council.

Yesterday there was a strong possibility of still another council candidate. Jean Chitwood, wife of John Chitwood, one of the two holdover councilmen, circulated nomination papers for herself and had received more than sufficient signatures to qualify, but failed to file when deadline arrived.

Larry Rose, deputy clerk and city tax collector, who became a candidate for city clerk when he learned that Peter Mawdsley would not run for re-election, will run uncontested, as will Harry Hilbert, veteran city treasurer.

Other council candidates are Geraldine Smith, Francis Whitaker, both incumbents who were first elected with Lyon four years ago, Roland Scheffler, Jim Buffington, Michael Franke, James Dixon, William Brown and Merle Murphy.

The last three filed this week.

Merle Murphy, general contractor, came to Carmel in 1951 from Tacoma, Washington, where he had lived since his release from the army in 1946. He served for three years in army ordinance in Europe and Asia. He is 35 years old and has been married seven months. For three years, Murphy was Scoutmaster of Carmel Troop 32. He would like to see more architectural design control of

Chamber Music Society To Give 3rd Concert On Sunday Evening

The third concert of a subscription series by the Carmel Chamber Music Society will be given Sunday evening at 8 o'clock at the Carmel Craft Studios.

The program will include a Mozart Quartet for Piano, Violin, Viola and Cello; a Fantaisie for Clarinet and Piano by Phillip Gaubert; Theme and Variation for Flute and Piano, Opus 20, by Mrs. Landsdale Podbereski, a composer now living in Monterey; the Corelli Concerto for Oboe and Strings; Dover Beach by Samuel Barber for baritone and string quartet; the Piano Quartet of Gabriel Faure, Opus 15; and the Andante for Tuba and Piano by Alexander Tcherepnin.

Pianist Angie Machado will be featured in the Mozart Quartet, other soloists for the concert will be Gene Bartlett, baritone, Lloyd Clapper, oboe. Gilbert Boyer, director of the concert, will be pianist in the Faure Piano Quartet.

COUNCIL JOGS SUPERVISORS ON SMOKE CONTROL

The city council at its special meeting last night read ordinances setting street grades, denied several tree removal applications and gave the P. G. and E. permission to remove two small pines and trim others.

They instructed City Clerk Peter Mawdsley to jog the memory of the County Board of Supervisors that they had promised that after six months they would study smoke control methods for Monterey County.

It is nearly a year since the promise was made.

Planning Board Argues Over Livingston's Proposed Tot Lots

Planning consultant Larry Livingston, Jr., meeting on Wednesday afternoon in study session with the Carmel Planning Commission stressed the lack of recreational facility provision for the pre-school and elementary school age child in Carmel, both in the Citizens' Report and the objectives of the Commission presented to him for consideration.

The objectives fell under nine headings agreeing almost identically with the objectives presented by Livingston to the Commission except in paragraph 5c. The Commission, after discussion, added to their single recommendation of establishing a site for a village square, the new objectives of school sites and recreational areas.

Livingston stated that he "strongly disagreed with using school sites as the only planned recreation areas for the child not in High School." He felt the child population should be considered in respect to "leisure time activity for juvenile recreation" and the areas he advocated should be located within one quarter to one half mile from the children's homes. There should be a place "for a boy to play ball" other than the street. Livingston also remarked that yards and gardens in Carmel were smaller than in an average suburban area, giving little room for pre-school children to play.

Commission Chairman Frank Putnam upheld Livingston's stand by remarking that he lived in an area where the child population was 4.0 per family as opposed to

The check represents Christmas tree sales profits which will be turned over to the Carmel Unified School District to help build a baseball diamond at the high school. Lion and Kiwanis members took time from their own businesses during the busy pre-Christmas season to sell Christmas trees on the property at the corner of Ocean and Junipero which the Lions are now operating as a parking lot with honor system coin boxes to raise additional funds for the ball diamond. —MURLE OGDEN PHOTO

Carmel High's front-running varsity basketball team faces a tough hurdle Friday night when the King City Mustangs invade the Padre pavilion for a crucial league battle. Although the King City 4-4 record practically eliminates them from contention for the championship, the Mustangs would enjoy doing their bit to knock the local preps out of first place.

CARMEL CLIPS PG, 57 TO 44

After a shaky first half which saw the Pacific Grove quintet outplay the tense Padre five, the local preps caught fire in the second half to snow under the Breakers, 57 to 44, in an important B-league game last Friday night at the PG gym. Behind at the intermission, 22 to 20, as a result of some clever shooting by Ronnie Bain and Eddie Estaban, Carmel's defense plugged the loopholes in the third quarter and cashed in on some fine shooting by Bob Wise, George Wightman, Dick Jennings, Mike Mosolf and Merv Sutton to build up a 15-point lead midway in the fourth period.

Carmel's Firehouse reserve gang manned by Bill McCormack, Clyde Klaumann, Tom Peyton, Bob Durbrow, Charley Dawson David Gray and Jim Bannerman also outshot the Breaker reserves, running to a 56-26 win over Coach Herb Schmalenberg's cohorts. Peyton and Klaumann led the Padre reserves in the scoring department, Peyton hitting for 17 markers and Klaumann chipping in with 15.

The Little Padrecitos found the PG Wavelets rough riding, dropping a 50-36 decision to Coach Charley Howell's fine lightweight squad. Blessed with plenty of good talent, the PG lights wore down the outmanned Padrecitos after a close first half. Ted Childers banged in 14 points to lead the Carmel Babes in the scoring department and the skinny senior also played a hustling game on defense.

Bob Wise, a steady left forward for the Padre varsity all season, turned in his best game of the year as he led the second half surge for the Carmel victory. Bob controlled rebounds off both boards, held PG's high-scoring Fisher to a pair of field goals in the second half, and hit on four set shots to finish off a fine evening of basketball. Captain Dick Jennings set a good example for his mates in the defensive department, holding his man to one point over the four-quarter route. Pudgy Dick isn't the fastest man on the squad but his moves get him to the right place at the right time.

In beating PG for the second time this season, the Padres broke a long-standing jinx which has prevented the red and gray squad from beating the Breakers more than once in any one season.

THE SPORT WHEEL

Henry Overin sets a good example. If you see a well-built athlete running innumerable windsprints, taking strenuous calisthenics, and working off a few excess pounds at the Carmel High athletic field, it will be Carmel's top professional baseball player, Henry Overin, getting prepared for a season of pitching with Albuquerque in the Western League. A few years back when Henry was a mere prep at Carmel High, the clever lefty moaned as loud as any of his classmates about the rugged physical fitness program dished out at the local high school. However, the likable ex-Padre, is now the number one example for stimulating Carmel High athletes to get in topflight physical condition.

Mike Mitchell—yo-yo champion. After several weeks of strenuous competition from school kids throughout Carmel, Mike Mitchell, top athlete at the Carmel Mission school, has emerged as the 1956 YO-YO Champion of Carmel. Little Mike is a whizz at swinging the trapeze, walking the dog, and the deep sleep trick with the yo-yo An eighth-grader at Mission ing table. The senior Dr. Magee saw service at Vicksburg, Virginia, and later was interned in Libby prison at Richmond. In their Carmel home, Dr. and Mrs. Magee treasure a fragile copy of the Vicksburg Daily Citizen, edited most appropriately by a J. M. Swords. The issue is dated July 2, 1863, the day before Vicksburg surrendered to Union forces. It is interesting to note, too, that the Civil War brought about its own paper shortage. The Vicksburg Daily Citizen is printed on the back of a sheet of yellow floral wallpaper, colorful and atractive in design to this day.

The Magees are of Scotch-Irish descent, and there were two Magees with George Washington when he crossed the Delaware. Dr. Thomas L. Magee brought his family to California iin 1885, when Chester was 15. In 1891 Chester, and his brother, De Los Magee (later a San Francisco attorney), were among the first students to pass through the four-year curriculum at Stanford. After Leland Stanford founded the university at Palo Alto Dr. David Starr Jordan, its first president, traveled about California "drumming up trade," as Dr. Magee phrases it. Dr. Jordan met the elder Dr. Magee and persuaded him that the newly founded university was the place for his two sons. The Magee boys engaged the first two rooms in Encina Hall, the large men's dormitory at Stanford. Close to 300 students made up the first student body, about 75 of them women. Freshmen numbered 250. The rest were senior and graduate students from Dr. Jordan's former college, Indiana State University.

In their class was a quiet, studious, unobtrusive young man who was working his way through college. He eschewed social life, and seemed to have almost no frivolity in his makeup, although he did display quite remarkable administrative talents in handling the finances of the Stanford baseball club. To his fellow classmen in 1891 the quiet student was notable only for his indifference to social life, parties, and girls. He was studying engineering. After graduation however he startled his Stanford associates by winning as his bride, a Miss Lou Henry, a vivacious geology major. And shortly thereafter Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover left for China on their honeymoon, the first of many journeys and missions which eventually were to take them to No. 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, The White House at Washington, D.C.

The opening of the small, 300-student university at Palo Alto brought loud guffaws from the hundreds of state university scholars at Berkeley. "Mrs. Stanford's kindergarten," was the derisive description given to it by the University of California sophisticates. It was another story, however, after the first Stanford-California 'big game', held in March, 1892, in a baseball lot at Mission and 8th Streets in San Francisco. The commencement of that first of the football classics was delayed for two hours. Neither team had remembered to bring a football to the field. An emissary had to be dispatched to downtown San Francisco to remedy the omission before the contest could begin. Stanford, with a team in practice only since the previous October, whipped California 14 to 10.

On the night of that first victory another precedent was established. The jubilant Stanfordites went out on the town. "They raised Cain," Dr. Magee remembers. "They went to all the saloons, got up on tables, shouted, danced, sang, broke glasses and bottles, and later made a round of the theatres and flung vegetable bouquets at the actors. I don't believe there were any arrests," smiles Dr. Magee. And with a twinkle in his eyes he adds, "Of course I didn't participate in such goings on. I was from a very conservative home. I was a very good boy." Chester Magee's reporting of details, however bears remarkable authenticity for one who wasn't there.

Dr. Magee and his brother were graduated in 1895 with Stanford's first senior class. In 1896, Chester received his M.A. also at Stanford, and at Johns Hopkins gained his medical degree in 1899. He served his internship at a Baltimore hospital, and then returned to San Diego. His homecoming allowed his father and mother — married 35 years — to take the honeymoon they had missed three and a half decades before. They proceeded to tour the Civil War battlefields where Dr. Thomas L. Magee had served with the Union Army, while their son took over his father's San Diego practice.

Chester Magee was a general practitioner in Los Angeles for ten years, and after his two sons were born, moved his family to San Gabriel, site of California's oldest Mission. There he specialized in obstetrics and pediatrics. In those days babies were born at home. "Very, very few people cared to be put to the expense of going to a hospital," Dr. Magee remembers. He kept a bag packed with instruments by his bedside, along with surgical gown for himself, and one for his prospective patient. A quick, cold ride through the dark . . . his instruments slipped into boiling water on the kitchen stove—and he was ready to go to work. Long ago he lost count of the number of babies he has delivered.

Chester Magee recalls, too, that he 'bled' heart-condition patients. A tourniquet was fastened about the patient's right arm, a vein was opened, and a cupful of blood was drawn. "By drawing blood away from the right side of the heart, congestion is lessened," he states. "Don't know why they don't try it once in a while today." Mustard plasters were his preferred remedy for colds ,and damp poultices for bronchitis. The poultice treatment consisted in wringing a cloth out of cold water and binding it tightly, four or five times, around the sufferer's chest. "It worked and it stopped the cough," says Dr. Magee, with forty years of medical practice to his credit.

Chester Magee was consulting physician to the Southern Pacific railroad—a post he still holds. In the first World War he was a surgeon in the 8th Infantry, but arrived in France the day before the armistice was signed.

The medical tradition continues in his family. His son, Dr. Thomas L. Magee, practices in Monterey. Another son, Major Byron D. Magee, who served on the then General Eisenhower's staff, on a mission to the Netherlands during the second World War, was decorated by the monarch of that country. The Magee family has not been without its tragedy; Byron lost his life in the Korea conflict.

Chester and Ednah Magee have five grandchildren: Byron's' son and daughter, Elizabeth Paige, 12, and Peter, 8. Dr. Thomas Magee's children are: Thomas L. Magee, III, 17; Tamara, 14, Duff Laird, 7 (named for his Scotch ancestors) and Lea, 4, given his grandfather Chester's middle name.

After a crowded, successful life of service to his fellowmen, Chester Magee now is content to enjoy his retirement in Carmel. "I attribute my age and good physical condition to the fact that I have so many interests," he says. "I have my music, my chess, and my night classes in ceramics and Spanish." He pauses reflectively, glances at his wife. "I go to school two nights a week, you know. Enjoy it a lot—but I have the very dickens of a time getting away from my wife and out of the house."

Mrs. Magee smiles. It's all right for him to slip away two nights a week," she announces firmly, "just so he remembers to come home."

Ednah Ballantyne Magee has not forgotten what happened the day before her wedding half a century ago.

8 Weston Prints Given To Library

Eight framed Edward Weston prints have been hung in the reading room of the Carmel Library, a gift to the community from Carmel Highlands artist, Jean Kellogg. One is a portrait of Robinson Jeffers and the rest are from Weston's series of Point Lobos photographs.

On Monday morning, before the opening of the library, Weston was given a private showing of his prints. Acknowledged as the world's finest photographer in his field, Weston has lived here since 1929, first in Carmel and now at the Highlands, in the studio home which he built overhanging Wildcat Creek.

County Stops Soil Removal At Garrapata

Removal of topsoil on the bluff west of Highway 1 on the north side of Garrapata Creek Bridge, will be stopped this afternoon by action of the County Planning Commission, on the grounds that no use permit was obtained for the work.

John A. Maschmeyer, Seaside topsoil and fertilizer salesman, is in the process of excavating on the property, and, according to Malcolm Millard, chairman of the Advisory Board to the Planning Commission for the northern coast area, no application for excavating was processed through his group, as is required. The matter was brought to Millard's attention by Francis Whitaker, representing the Lobos League, which is concerned about the topsoil removal as it is taking place on land earmarked by the State for future acquisition in their beach and park program.

When Millard contacted the County Planning Commission he found that they were already aware of the illegal excavation and were dispatching a man to post the ground this afternoon.

Arabian Influence Is To Be Seen In Mehdy Block Prints

The linoleum block prints on exhibit at the Harrison Memorial Library until March 4 are by Mrs. Alice Mehdy, member of the Carmel Craft Guild.

Mrs. Mehdy graduated from the University of California as an art major in 1945. While at Cal she became acquainted with a student from Iraq, Salih Mehdy, who returned home when he graduated in 1945. The following year Alice met him in Baghdad where they were married and they remained there for four years.

Her residence in Arabia influenced Mrs. Mehdy's work as is to be seen in the semi-abstract Arabic designs in her textiles and paper block prints on exhibit at the library, signed Ameera, the Arabic equivalent of her name, Alice.

Mrs. Mehdy is also a writer. She had contributed over 30 Arabic proverbs to the magazine People, edited by Pearl Buck, and Arabic folk tales to the University of Florida's magazine, Folklore. Last fall Islamic, a magazine published in London by Moslems, carried Mrs. Mehdy's story, American Girl Life in a Moslem Family, which related her experiences with her husband's family in Baghdad.

She has been a resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1953 when Mr. Mehdy came to the Army Language School as an instructor in the Arabic department. The Mehdys have two children, Jameel, a two year old boy, and Mona, four months old.

The Reverend Philip Atherton Goold died unexpectedly at his home at Carpenter and Third streets on February 8 at the age of 71. He had lived in Carmel for just over a year.

Reverend Goold was born in Boston, Massachusetts, on March 25, 1884. He was a missionary in India from 1913-1920. Returning to the United States he became associated with the Y.M.C.A. in New York City and established the first vocational guidance plan in this country. Eight years before coming to Carmel he was vocational guidance officer for Hillyer College in Hartford, Connecticut. His retirement to Carmel ended 34 years in vocational guidance work.

A member of the Monterey Methodist Church, Reverend Goold was chairman of the church's committee on Missions. He worked with the Reverend Bernard Lowry of the First Methodist Church of Pacific Grove on the School of Missions and was a psychology instructor in Pacific Grove Adult School.

He leaves his wife, Mildred Elizabeth, of Carmel; a daughter, Mrs. Norton S. Walbridge of Grosse Pointe, Michigan; a son, Philip A. Goold, Jr., of Grosse Pointe; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Saturday morning at 11:00 o'clock in Paul Mortuary Chapel with Dr. Ezra Cox, Reverend Richard Huser and Reverend Bernard W. Lowry officiating.

Memorial contributions for Reverend Goold may be made by those desiring, to the Monterey Methodist Building Fund or the Fund for the Methodist Missions in India, c/o Reverend Richard Huser, Monterey Methodist Church.

English Comedy Makes Successful Bow At Circle

BY ELIZABETH LAWRENCE

The laughter emanating from the Golden Bough Circle Theatre these week-end evenings indicates that Impresario Edward Kuster, and The Golden Bough Players, under the direction of Charles Thomas, have another hit. It is Fresh Fields, one of the most cherished comedies of British playwright, Ivor Novello, and one which enchanted London audiences for many a season, and then crossed the Atlantic to Broadway, where with Margaret Anglin starred, it captivated American theatre-goers.

A first-night audience which filled the Players' Circle Theatre Friday night offered tribute to the play which pricks the foibles of London high society with zest and an earthy good humor.

Particular credit is due Director Charles Thomas for his staging of the Novello comedy within the intimate limits of the Circle Theatre. With a handsome Victorian sofa, upholstered in yellow velvet, a pair of sideboards, two chairs, a drop-leaf table, a bank of potted greens and a fireplace facade, the director creates the authentic atmosphere of a London drawing room. If this much theatre magic can be accomplished with furniture "props" — why bother with scenic designers, settings and revolving scenery? Lighting and costuming are exceptional also.

In her role of Lady Mary Crabbe, Ruth McElroy exemplifies that kind of stage presence and technical skill which moulds and sharpens the froth of which Novello's play is made. Her characterization of Lady Mary — the role made famous by Margaret Anglin—is one built almost entirely on innuendo, witty lines delivered with a rapier swiftness, and an insouciant casualness that is the very key to success in such a role.

Florence Dormody brings a comic hauteur to her role of a bachelor girl long past the age where such a title can be worn gracefully.

Babs Richardson has barely to set foot on stage, in her role of Mrs. Pidgeon, newly arrived in London from Brisbane, to release an audience already geared to chuckles, into laughter. Her performance of the well-intentioned traveler from Australia, plush of purse, but lacking in the social graces, is one of high comedy—expert in voice and gesture.

Dolores Pickens, dark, petite and pretty, provides the surprise of the evening in her metamorphosis from the gangling Australian girl who gains sufficient quick polish — and from a surprising source — to permit her presentation at court, and her emergence as the belle of a London season. Miss Pickens' scene at the end of the second act, when in justified anger she castigates her supposed benefactors, proves her a young actress of vigor and warmth.

To Allen Foulkes falls the role of a likeable diamond-in-the-rough, who aspires above his station. His "love" scene with Florence Dormody is one of the comic highlights of the evening.

Robert McCarter does well with the role of the penniless scion who has his job hunting complicated by his mother's letter writing to prospective employers, suggesting he will be able to buy an interest in their business when he makes a suitable marriage.

Hildreth Hare brings a beautifully modulated voice and grace of presence to the role of Lady Strawholme.

Douglas Macfarlane makes the butler, indispensable to such plays, wryly humorous, while Bee Mouser exhibits exactly the restrained mien required of a long-suffering secretary whose wittle-brained employers rarely pay her salary.

Hazel McLellan in her costuming provides a veritable fashion show in the case of Ruth Elroy, Florence Dormody and Hildreth Hare, and sound characterization for other roles. Edgar Bryant and Kit Jones have lit the play handsomely, so that throughout it is a visual delight.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

We speak of "our land", of "our property". We claim ownership of just so many feet of territory. I wonder why? Who owns what? The truth of the matter is, that we are all custodians of a small part of the world, and no one living has land in perpetuity.

It is disturbing to harbor this thought, but let's face it. Who was the so-called owner of say, the plot of land you now call your own? One hundred years ago . . . fifty years ago, and who will step on a particular parcel of land say in one hundred years? Custodians . . . that's all we are. And what am I getting at with this philosophizing? There is a lovely line of poetry somewhere that escapes me, and only one line remains. It has something to do with a fellow finding one blade of grass and working to make two blades grow in the same place.

Broken down to understanding, this means that each one of us is responsible for some one parcel of land and we have a definite responsibility toward posterity to improve and protect our property. This is my sly way to remind you that garden time is here and we better get out with hoe and rake and start this "improvement for posterity", as well as improvement for ourselves.

You may not believe it, but garden watering is once more upon us. I have been watering my surface plants, those of shallow roots, for two weeks. Back yonder, a few weeks ago, we thought never to hold a hose in our hands again. The surface of our soil is dry as dry and all small shrubs and plants are crying for water.

Like everybody else, I dread starting the old routine. . . weeding, watering, pruning and general clean-up. The task before us seems more than we can handle. However, there is one sure thing about gardening. One small sprout of a seedling that we ourselves have planted is inspiration, and in our absorption and excitement, away we go, forgetting tedious chores and looking forward to a blooming garden.

This is a good time for young delphinium plants to go into the soil. Seedlings of delphinium will bloom this year. They can be gotten at any nursery, ready for the ground. More tender plants, such as annuals, had better wait until March for planting. Then away we all go, fascinated with what the nurseries and catalogues have to offer.

Go on out now, on some future landowner's property and do the best you can for his "one thousand year hence" ownership!

TOWN HOUSE HONORS GEORGE WASHINGTON

On Wednesday at 3:00 o'clock at Carmel Foundation Town House, Mrs. George Porter will give a short talk on George Washington. Phyllis Calley will then tell of some of the experiences she and her husband had while vagabonding through Mexico, illustrated by her watercolor sketches done there and showing interesting pieces of pottery brought back with them. Tea will be served as usual after the talks.

The watercolor exhibit of William C. Watts continues through the month and may be seen during Town House hours, 10:00 o'clock in the morning to 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

On Tuesday Miss Donna Davis will meet for the first time with the group of painters working in the Town House Studio. A former member of the art faculty of San Mateo Junior College, Miss Davis has recently retired to Carmel.

Meeting place for those intending to go on the expedition is at the intersection of the Salinas Highway and River Road (road running along west side of the Salinas River) on the Monterey side of the Salinas River bridge at 9:00 o'clock in the morning. Joan Daniels To Marry

A romance which developed in the advertising department of the New York offices of Doubleday and Company, publishers, will result in the marriage on March 17 of Joan Adele Daniels, oldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Daniels, and Jeremy C. Lanning, son of the Reverend and Mrs. Jesse H. Lanning of Plymouth, North Carolina.

Joan has been employed by Doubleday for a year and a half and is now assistant to the advertising manager. Her future husband is a copywriter in the same department. Their marriage will be performed by Jeremy's father in the Methodist Church of Plymouth, North Carolina, a beautiful old building erected in 1832, and the reception following the wedding will be in the same church of which Joan's future father-in-law is pastor.

Mrs. Erik Short (Carlie Daniels) will be her sister's attendant and Mr. and Mrs. Daniels will also be present at the marriage of their daughter.

Unable to go East for the event are Joan's other sister, Deanna, and her two brothers, Larry and Timothy, but they will meet their new brother-in-law this summer when Joan and Jeremy plan a trip home for two weeks.

Joan graduated from Carmel High School in 1950 and from the University of California, as a major in English Literature, four years later. After a summer spent at home and working for the administration department of the Monterey County Fair she left in September of 1954 to begin work in the advertising department of Doubleday.

Jeremy graduated from Duke University in 1951, and, following two years as public information officer with the United States Air Force, went to work for Doubleday, writing material used for book-jackets. He has one sister, Cindy.

Leslie On Dean's List

Leslie Doolittle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Doolittle, in his junior year of the humanities course at Claremont Men's College, is one of the 74 students on the Dean's honor list for last semester. He received his high school education in Carmel.

Elton Clark To Marry

Because of an unexpected Navy order, Dona Ames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ames of Portland, Maine, and Lieutenant Elton Clark, son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard E. Clark, will be married this Saturday instead of in June as they had planned.

The wedding will take place at the home of Dona's parents in Portland, with Dr. John Blinks of Carmel as best man for Elton. Dr. and Mrs. Clark and their daughter, Priscilla, a freshman at Stanford, will be unable to go East for the wedding on such short notice but all talked to Elton when he announced his plans to them this week. They have already met his future bride when they were in the East.

Dona and Elton met in Hanover, New Hampshire, three years ago when Elton was at Dartmouth College and Dona a student at the University of New Hampshire. Dona is in her senior year at the University of New Hampshire and had planned to graduate in June and then be married to Elton. But, the Navy has transferred him from the destroyer USS Cotten, which was berthed in Boston Naval Yard, to the USS Preston, a destroyer which has been transferred to the Pacific fleet.

Elton expects to arrive in Long Beach with his ship in the middle of April and his bride will join him shortly thereafter. Dr. and Mrs. Clark are hoping that Elton and Dona will come to Carmel when he has leave so they can introduce their daughter-in-law to their friends.

Gilroy tackle on Northern California Shrine team. Bob Harrison, 230-pound tackle from Gilroy High School, was recently selected to play in the North - South prep Shrine game at Los Angeles in mid-August. Selection of the Mustang great is also a compliment to Carmel High's 1955 grid squad which whipped Gilroy, 13 to 0. Most of the yardage picked up by the Padres on the way to their upset win over Gilroy was gained by counter and keep plays, hitting at Bib Bob's territory. High on the list of all college coaches, this agile All-Leaguer is a cinch for big-time college football.

Fremont High (Sunnyvale) — a threat to win Carmel hoop tournament. Another classy basketball team is being fashioned at Fremont High in the Santa Clara Valley Athletic League. Fremont's basketball prowess is of interest to Carmel hoop fans as the Indians are regular participants in the Annual Carmel Tournament and will be on hand March 1, 2 and 3 for this year's tourney. Fremont has won the tournament twice and always makes a good showing win or lose. Coach Ray Snyder's squad is currently leading the Santa Clara Valley league and holds victories over several schools in the Peninsula Athletic League.

Third Child For Devlins

Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Francis Thomas Devlin have a third child since February 1 when Kathryn was born at the Monterey Hospital, joining the other Devlin children, Cynthia, six and a half, and Louis, three and a half. The Devlins have been living in Carmel since three days before Christmas when Lt. Col. Devlin came here to settle his family before starting Czecho-Slovakian studies at the Army Language School. In November he expects to be sent to Czecho-Slovakia as a military attache for the United States government. Previous to coming here he was stationed in Washington, D.C. in strategic intelligence. The Devlins love Carmel and, according to Mrs. Devlin, will be back some day, and right now wish they could live here forever. "And that's something from a Texan", she admitted. There is no doubt that Kathryn is appreciated by her older brother and sister, "we have had to put a hook on the bedroom door", says Mrs. Devlin, "or they would love her to death."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How greater intelligence and wisdom can be gained through scientific understanding of God, divine Mind, will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Mind" will include the following selection from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (128:4-11): "The term Science, properly understood, refers only to the laws of God and to His government of the universe, inclusive of man. From this it follows that business men and cultured scholars have found that Christian Science enhances their endurance and mental powers, enlarges their perception of character, gives them acuteness and comprehensiveness and an ability to exceed their ordinary capacity."

Also emphasizing the divine source of wisdom is the Golden Text from the King James Version of the Bible (Proverbs 2:6): "The Lord giveth wisdom: out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding."

William H. Brown, insurance consultant, came to Carmel as a child in 1919. He is the son of Mrs. Florence Sharon Brown, and attended Sunset, Forest Hill and Monterey High schools, Piedmont High School and the University of California and the Cornell Hotel School.

In 1942 he joined the United States Air Force and saw four years overseas service.

Brown wishes to represent the homeowners. He is alarmed at "the infringement of, commercial interests on the residence area." He is a cousin of State Senator Fred Farr, the brother of Mrs. James Doud and the uncle of Mrs. Shreve MacLaren Archer.

James Dixon, custodian at River School, gave up the position of assistant engineer for the Oakland School system nine years ago to live in Carmel. He and his wife operate the Holland Court Lodge on San Carlos Street. A native of England, he came to Massachusetts with his family at the age of eight and grew up on Cape Cod. He joined the navy when he finished school and during World War II saw service all over the world. He retired after 20 years of service with a chief warrant machinists rating. He has seen destruction come to so many beautiful places in the world, he wants to play an active part in preserving the beauty here.

COUNTY WOULD TAX S.P.C.A.

Dr. Ralph Weston, elected president of the S.P.C.A. on Tuesday evening, told the Pine Cone yesterday that the S.P.C.A. has offered to take all unclaimed healthy cats and dogs at the County Pound and find homes for them. But the County Board of Supervisors, in reply to a letter from the S.P.C.A., written on January 1, has informed the S.P.C.A. that the animals may be released to them for placement on purchase of a license, payment of board bill and the required anti-rabies vaccination, if necessary.

Members of the S.P.C.A. feel that this is unjust as there would be "double taxation", according to Weston.

The S.P.C.A. has decided again to approach the peninsula cities and the county.

Plan Board Argues Over Livingston's Proposed Tot Lots

Carmel's average .63 and "a game of ball was always going on in the street."

"We must have children," said Putnam, "they are here to stay." He felt that a suggestion by Commissioner George Willox to close off streets for child play was "sad".

Commissioner Herbert Blanks, as father of four boys of school age, remarked he thought children in Carmel "had too much to do" and felt that specially planned play areas were unnecessary. Building Inspector Adams commented that Carmel was "different . . . full of individuals . . . and that they would not welcome organized play areas for their children." Mrs. Gladys Kiplinger felt that the sound of children's "shrill voices" should be considered in respect to placing play areas in the residence zone. Commissioner Florence Josselyn's opinion was that the school grounds were adequate. Mrs. Dora Comstock felt that the children should have "more natural areas for play." Mrs. Josselyn, in considering that the Master Plan would deal with Carmel 25 years from now, and that residents then might desire pre-school play areas, called tot-lots, thought possible sites should be explored by Livingston. The motion to look into this matter and report to the Commission was made by George Willox and seconded by Mrs. Comstock.
